Question 4(40 marks)

Refer to Source 5 in the Source booklet. Please note that you are not required to analyse the artwork.

When viewing artwork, individuals construct meaning based on their own experiences and the visual evidence provided. Joan Ross digitally superimposes images and symbols of contemporary Australian life in colonial paintings to communicate her views on the colonisation* of Australia.

With reference to Source 5, use art terminology to discuss the ways in which your research/ investigation artist has deliberately made choices in the creation of their artwork to communicate meaning.

In your response:

- refer to more than one artwork
- refer to how the social, cultural and/or historical context(s) communicates meaning in the artwork
- refer to style, subject matter and techniques
- provide your personal response to the choices made in the artwork produced by your research/investigation artist(s) and by the artist in Source 5.

* Colonisation is the forming of a settlement or colony by a group of people that seeks to take control of territories or countries. The British colonised Australia in 1788 and artists who painted during this period are referred to as 'colonial painters'.

Question 5(40 marks)

Refer to Source 6 in the Source booklet. Please note that you are not required to analyse the artwork.

Tony Cragg communicates meaning through his deliberate selection and use of art forms, media and techniques. Cragg's sculpture is composed of many small bronze figures welded together to create larger human forms. The gaps in-between allow all the figures to be visually connected and merge into interconnected shapes when viewed from a variety of angles. This helps to evoke themes of human connection and community.

With reference to Source 6, use art terminology to discuss how your research/investigation artist has deliberately created artworks that communicate meaning through their selection of art forms, media and techniques.

In your response:

- refer to more than one artwork
- refer to how the social, cultural and/or historical contexts informs the artwork
- refer to how art forms, media and techniques communicate meaning
- make links in your personal response to the selection of art forms, media and techniques used by both your research/investigation artist(s) and the artist of Source 6.
